Tonight brings to a close the forty-sixth program of Art in Cinema to be shown at the San Francisco Museum of Art. During the seven series present here, and the three series presented at Wheeler Auditorium at the University of California, in collaboration with the University Extension, we have cover as comprehensively as has ever been done, the field of the experimental motion picture. It is to the advantage, not only of the editors of Art in Cinema, but to the people who make films, and the audiences who are interested in seeing them, to ask for your opinions on the films shown during Series Seven. Below is a list of those films. May we ask that you indicate your preference in the following manner: X for approval, / for those you considered fair or merely adequate, and O for those you thought poor.

Any form of art should either be clear to its observer without an hour discourse or it has lost all its point and should be turned into some form of literature

Miss Deren's films are excellent. Her choice of dancers is exciting to any lover of dance

Tonight brings to a close the forty-sixth program of Art in Cinema to be shown at the San Francisco Museum of Art. During the seven series present here, and the three series presented at Wheeler Auditorium at the University of California, in collaboration with the University Extension, we have cover as comprehensively as has ever been done, the field of the experimental motion picture. It is to the advantage, not only of the editors of Art in Cinema, but to the people who make films, and the audiences who are interested in seeing them, to ask for your opinions on the films shown during Series Seven. Below is a list of those films. May we ask that you indicate your preference in the following manner: X for approval, / for those you considered fair or merely adequate, and 0 for those you thought poor.

General Remarks:

NOTE! ENTIRELY TOO MUCH TALK WITH THE PAST FOUR FILMS. FEEL ARTIST IS TRYING TO JUSTIFY HERSELF.

(We would appreciate your leaving this list at the desk tonight, or mailing it to the San Francisco Museum of Art, attention, Art in Cinema.

I SEE "AT LAND" AS AN EXCELLANT EXAMPLE OF FREUDIANISM AND ENJOY IT AS SUCH.

PACIFIC 231	—	X	Legitimate and nearly perfect linking of sight & sound.
DELVAUX	—	/	Didn't seem to be able to make up its mind as to whether it was going to tell a story using the pictures or tell about Delvaux.
RAKETENFLUG u.s.w.	—	O	How can a two minute flight around the moon be so dull? Pretty poor imagination & technique.
BA TEAU IVRE	—	O	Maybe there is some justification for the film as a whole, but it seems a misuse of the medium. A poem is a catalyst to stir images in the hearers mind & concerte visuals are a mista ke.
REGLE DU JEU	—	/	I guess this was mainly the fault of the poor print,
MOODS OF THE SEA	—	/	Nowhere near the standard of PACIFIC 231
AUBERVILLIERS	—	X	Good use of contrapuntal commentary.
LEGATO	—	OO	The Vibraharp is a lousy instrument & when physical hurt to the eyes is added it's time to call a halt.
SHIPYARD	—	X	No more starting in the middle, please.
PUNKT PRELUDIUM	—	/	Some relation between music & image, for a change.
MOTHER	—	XX	If THE END OF ST. PETERSBURG is available could we have it?
FETES GALANTES	—	/	There is far too much of this stuff these days.
BOXING TONIGHT	—	O	As a one minute joke, perhaps.
CHESS FEVER	—	X
ELIZABETH	—	X	Creates real mood & feeling with very simple means.
THE RA VEN	—	X	See BATEAU IVRE. A s a TV program it's a cut above average & on a small screen it may look better, but L.J. or no L.J. why on Art In Cinema?
FLUGTEN	—	X
BEGONE DULL CARE	—	/	Basically the trouble with nonobjective painting and most jazz (akind of nonobjective music) is that they lack form. There is nothing to stimulate the imagination or stir the emotions, only a senseless, jittery excitement.
THE LOON'S NECKLACE		O	Perhaps I was expecting too much, but all the same trying to combine animated cartoon, real people in masks & the masks themselves he only succeeded in falling among three stools.
IMAGES MEDIEVALES	—	/	Good color and pretty well done (esp. the music) but fundamentally films on still pictures, while they may be quite delightful, are not true to the medium.
ROOM STUDY	—	X	One of the Better films of this type. Sound & image integrated.
FOUR IN THE A FTERNOON		X
LOONEY TOM	—	X	Don't care for the Cha plinesque ending -if the sequences following the collapse of the table could be moved ahead of the barnyard pic-nic and the film end with the fall of the table it would be better.
ADVENTURES OF JIMMY		X	Despite some wonderful moments it needs more work to tighten & clarify.
3 DIMENSION FILMS		O	Too much bother for the very slight effect achieved.
MAYA DEREN			The dance film is excellent, the only one I've seen that really makes dance on film as exciting as straight dance. AT LAND gets XX for real creative use of film. TRANSFIGURED TIME seems to go overboard on the ideas used so well in AT LAND and to get boring. MEDITATION ON VIOLENCE could also stand a lot of cutting.

General Remarks:

There seems to be a moral in the fact that with the exception of PACIFIC231 all the films that stand out are films with people. Generally programs tend to be too long, one can only absorb so much at a time. Could we have them more often, but less on each program?

General Remarks:

Perhaps I have rated these too high for I felt that the series was not outstanding and further felt that this might be due to the taste of those selecting the films. There are many abstract films in the experimental field far worthier than the rather forced presentations witnessed during this series. - My wife concurs - by coincidence purely.

Smith's title is misleading. Rather should it be "Depth Films." Three dimensional implies volume which the films objects failed to have.

Tonight brings to a close the forty-sixth program of Art in Cinema to be shown at the San Francisco Museum of Art. During the seven series presented here, and the three series presented at Wheeler Auditorium at the University of California, in collaboration with the University Extension, we have covered as comprehensively as has ever been done, the field of the experimental motion picture. It is to the advantage, not only of the editors of Art in Cinema, but to the people who make films, and the audiences who are interested in seeing them, to ask for your opinions on the films shown during Series Seven. Below is a list of those films. May we ask that you indicate your preference in the following manner: X for approval, / for those you considered fair or merely adequate, and O for those you thought poor.

General Remarks:

Personally, I would rather buy a series of three evenings of proportionately higher quality. But the films I saw this year were in general much better than ~~last~~ the average of last year's series. More of Broughton and Deren is my wish for next year. (But cut down Deren's talking time!)

General Remarks: Volume of recorded background music played for films without a sound track (& played before program starts) is too loud. It is also not necessary to play music with everything. Sometimes quality & power of background music is much greater than film & it is very hard to concentrate on film; ~~(We would appreciate your leaving this list at the desk tonight, or mailing it to the San Francisco Museum of Art, attention, Art in Cinema.~~ The music not only becomes an intrusion but an overwhelming one. Greater care should be exercised as to when & when not to have music & where. The principle: a film showing, not a recorded concert.

This misuse of music was most annoying with Pudovkin's MOTHER, which is much too strong in its structure to allow for anything else.

Attention: Art in Cinema

Tonight brings to a close the forty-sixth program of Art in Cinema to be shown at the San Francisco Museum of Art. During the seven series present here, and the three series presented at Wheeler Auditorium at the University of California, in collaboration with the University Extension, we have cover as comprehensively as has ever been done, the field of the experimental motion picture. It is to the advantage, not only of the editors of Art in Cinema, but to the people who make films, and the audiences who are interested in seeing them, to ask for your opinions on the films shown during Series Seven. Below is a list of those films. May we ask that you indicate your preference in the following manner: X for approval, / for those you considered fair or merely adequate, and O for those you thought poor.

General Remarks: The general program this year seemed better selected than any I have previously seen. However, I am growing tired of the "cinematic journey into static works of art", excellent though each individual picture may be.

Norman McLaren's abstract films are always a delight, as was the work and lecture of James Broughton.

General Remarks:

Comments or dialogue in anything but English is almost a complete loss to me *, when used with many of the films in this series, ruins the film — at least subtitles would give me some idea of what the producer is attempting to put across. Obviously one is supposed to get something from the spoken word or else it would be omitted — as in "Elizabeth," above.

(We would appreciate your leaving this list at the desk tonight, or mailing it to the San Francisco Museum of Art, attention, Art in Cinema.

* This was the first 3-dimensional film I had seen — quite a disappointment. It seems to me that the subject matter (geometric patterns) was very poorly suited to 3-dimensional work. The only real feeling of a 3-dimensional effect I got was from the manipulation of the circles.

Tonight brings to a close the forty-sixth program of Art in Cinema to be shown at the San Francisco Museum of Art. During the seven series present here, and the three series presented at Wheeler Auditorium at the University of California, in collaboration with the University Extension, we have cover as comprehensively as has ever been done, the field of the experimental motion picture. It is to the advantage, not only of the editors of Art in Cinema, but to the people who make films, and the audiences who are interested in seeing them, to ask for your opinions on the films shown during Series Seven. Below is a list of those films. May we ask that you indicate your preference in the following manner: X for approval, / for those you considered fair or merely adequate, and O for those you thought poor.

Tonight brings to a close the forty-sixth program of Art in Cinema to be shown at the San Francisco Museum of Art. During the seven series present here, and the three series presented at Wheeler Auditorium at the University of California, in collaboration with the University Extension, we have cover as comprehensively as has ever been done, the field of the experimental motion picture. It is to the advantage, not only of the editors of Art in Cinema, but to the people who make films, and the audiences who are interested in seeing them, to ask for your opinions on the films shown during Series Seven. Below is a list of those films. May we ask that you indicate your preference in the following manner: X for approval, / for those you considered fair or merely adequate, and O for those you thought poor.

During the seven series present here, and the three series presented at Wheeler Auditorium at the University of California, in collaboration with the University Extension, we have cover as comprehensively as has ever been done, the field of the experimental motion picture. It is to the advantage, not only of the editors of Art in Cinema, but to the people who make films, and the audiences who are interested in seeing them, to ask for your opinions on the films shown during Series Seven. Below is a list of those films. May we ask that you indicate your preference in the following manner: X for approval, / for those you considered fair or merely adequate, and O for those you thought poor.

General Remarks: Much of the enjoyment was spoiled by the fact that the screen is so close to the level of heads of the audience - It is impossible because of this to get a clear view of the screen - wouldn't it be possible to raise the screen 2 or 3 feet higher so that we can all see?

Notes on tonight's films will take the form of addresses by both Miss Deren and Mr. Smith.

Tonight brings to a close the forty-sixth program of Art in Cinema to be shown at the San Francisco Museum of Art. During the seven series present here, and the three series presented at Wheeler Auditorium at the University of California, in collaboration with the University Extension, we have cover as comprehensively as has ever been done, the field of the experimental motion picture. It is to the advantage, not only of the editors of Art in Cinema, but to the people who make films, and the audiences who are interested in seeing them, to ask for your opinions on the films shown during Series Seven. Below is a list of those films. May we ask that you indicate your preference in the following manner: X for approval, / for those you considered fair or merely adequate, and 0 for those you thought poor.
